Dear Dave/Fania,

I am writing to express my interest to work as a Web Developer. I have enclosed my CV in which may provide you some interest.

I believe that starting a career in this role would be a huge benefit enabling me to enhance my skills significantly, allowing me to have the opportunity to increase my platform of learning and experience.

I am currently in my final year studying Business Information Systems at De Montfort University after recently completing a 12-month placement at Caterpillar. This course has helped me strengthen and develop computing skills such as now being able to analyse systems as well as use software that will allow me to create use case diagrams, ERD diagrams, Class diagrams, and activity diagrams. In addition to this, I have also learnt how to code in different languages. My first year consisted me of using C# and I learnt Ruby on Rails as part of an agile development module during my second year.

Second year has also enabled me to add a qualification to my achievement list. I participated in an ITIL foundation exam provided by HP, in which I received a certificate for passing. Preparation for this exam gave me a great insight to IT services and organisation. It has also given me a greater understanding of its use in businesses which I experienced during my time at Caterpillar.

My placement at Caterpillar went well and I had a fantastic experience. I was fortunate to participate in key roles within the team starting as a Project Manager as well as undertaking admin activities on the side. Towards the second half of my placement, I was given a role of a Business Analyst, where I spent most of my time working on the eCommerce Project.

I would like to express my gratitude for taking time and looking at my CV. I hope you are impressed with the skills I bring to the table and are aware of my potential and suitability to do well for your placement role. Thank you

Yours Sincerely,

Mohammed Murtaza
